Courses

POS 2041 American Politics

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

Deals with the constitutional principles on which the republic was founded, the evolution of institutions which emerged after 1789, and the development of processes and policies in response to 20th Century challenges and changes in the political culture. Meets General Education requirement in Social Sciences.

POS 3033 Political Analysis

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

This course introduces students to methods of analysis used by political scientists. Students learn to approach analysis like a social scientist employing existing theories to set up the evaluation of evidence and information. Common sources of political evidence such as polls, surveys, and coded data sets may provide a basis for applied analysis in the course. Political issues are considered as students learn to apply tools such as visual data interpretation, statistical analysis, coding qualitative sources, and modeling to derive insights.

POS 3413 The Presidency

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

We begin our exploration of the American presidency with a critical overview of the constitutional parameters of the executive office. What did our founding fathers expect from an executive? From there we examine how the presidential institution has evolved since the founding. The presidency definitely has a somewhat different place now in our separated system of branches sharing power than it once did. One of the most important features we address is how individual presidents have impacted the scope and direction of the office. We highlight the important role of person style, leadership, persuasion, and charisma as an influence on American government as a whole. Finally, we evaluate competing theories of presidential power to see how useful they are in explaining contemporary presidential politics.

POS 3424 The Legislative Process

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

Prerequisite: POS 2041

POS 3608 Constitutional Law: Federalism and Separation of Powers

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

Offers an introduction to the fundamental features of the Supreme Court and its Constitutional jurisprudence. In particular, students will examine through a case-study approach the evolution of judicial review, separation of powers, powers of the President and Congress, the evolution of federalism, the national commerce power, and national taxing and spending powers.

POS 3613 Constitutional Controversies

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

The American Founders established a Supreme Court to resolve all cases and controversies arising under the federal Constitution and its subsequent laws and treaties. This Court would serve primarily as an appellate tribunal, a court of last resort, reviewing and remanding, reversing or upholding the rulings of lower courts in both the federal and state judiciaries. In this course we will examine those elements of the appellate process on constitutional law, including the Court's review of petitions of certiorari, of merits briefs and the corresponding amici briefs and oral argument.

POS 3624 Constitutional Law: Individual Rights and Privileges

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government

3 sh (may not be repeated for credit)

Offers an introduction to Supreme Court's role in the protection of individual rights, due process, and the equal protection of the laws. In particular, students will examine through a case study approach the evolution of the Court's jurisprudence in cases pertaining to civil rights and individual freedoms protected under the Constitution of the United States.

POS 3625 First Amendment Freedoms

Col of Arts, Soc Sci and Human, Department of Government
