

Transfer of Credit

Graduate Transfer Credit

Transfer credits applicable to all graduate degrees are subject to the following requirements:

- The receipt and coordination of the evaluation of graduate transfer credits is the responsibility of the Graduate School. The department chairperson for the graduate program to which an applicant applies has ultimate authority in determining which courses are applicable toward the requirements for that degree at UWF. Exact course equivalents are determined in consultation with the departments.
- Applicants may request reconsideration of a transfer credit evaluation. Such requests must be directed to the Graduate School.
- UWF will only accept transfer credits from those institutions whose accrediting agency is included on the list of approved accrediting agencies at the time the credits were earned. For applicability to a given degree program, departments may specify that transfer credits must be earned at an institution accredited by a specific accrediting agency.
- Applicants with credits from institutions whose accrediting agency is not included on the list of approved accrediting agencies at the time the credits were earned may petition the Graduate School for a re-evaluation of the credits earned at such institutions.
- UWF reserves the right to evaluate specific courses and deny graduate transfer credit.

The department offering the degree program may recommend that transfer courses which were taken more than six years before the degree is to be awarded may be included in the student's program of study if the department validates that the student has current knowledge related to the course subject matter.
- Graduate transfer credit applicable to a specialist degree must have been earned within five years of the date of admission to the UWF specialist degree program and be approved by a student's academic department.

- Students whose programs consist of 30 to 36 semester hours may have a maximum of six semester hours or two courses (whichever is greater in credit) of graduate work at other universities accepted toward their program requirements at UWF. The department chairperson's permission is required for the credits to be accepted.

Traveling Scholar Program

The University participates in a traveling scholar program which enables graduate students to take advantage of special resources available on another campus, but not available on the home campus. Examples are special course offerings, research opportunities, unique laboratories, and library collections.

A traveling scholar's graduate advisor will approach an appropriate faculty member at the proposed host institution and recommend the scholar for a visiting arrangement. After agreement by the student's advisor and the faculty member at the host institution, graduate deans of both institutions will be fully informed by the advisor and have the power to approve or disapprove. A student will register at the host institution and will pay tuition and/or registration fees according to fee schedules established at that institution. Credit for the work taken will be recorded at the home University.

Each university retains its full right to accept or reject any student who wishes to study under its auspices. A traveling scholar will normally be limited to one term on the campus of the host institution. A traveling scholar accepted by the host institution will be regarded as being registered at that institution for the period.

A traveling scholar is not entitled to displacement allowance, mileage, or per diem payments. The home university, however, may at its option continue its financial support of the traveling scholar in the form of a fellowship or graduate assistantship with any work obligation to be discharged either at the home or at the host institution.
